

SCHOOL BOARD BUYS RECORDING DEVICE MONDAY

The Gettysburg school board, at its regular September meeting Monday night in the office of Dr. Lloyd C. Keefe, superintendent of schools, voted to purchase a new voice-recording machine from H. W. Baker, local radio store proprietor, for $149.50, after receiving a demonstration.

Mr. Baker explained that voices or music were recorded by a magnetic principle on a wire, which could be played over and over again, or could be removed and the same wire used for other recordings.

The recorder has been demonstrated, he said, in the high school recently, using a section of the senior class to record voices. The "wire" was played for the members of the school board, who heard the seniors relate some of their experiences during the past summer vacation.

The microphone was then passed around the table to school board members, who recorded their voices in impromptu speeches and this record was then played back.

To Get Coal Bids

In the case of the senior class recording, Mr. Baker said that Miss Ruth McIlhenny, high school English teacher, planned to use the recordings to demonstrate faults in diction and play them back to the classes later to show stages of improvement. He said that the recorder could also be used for many other purposes, such as recording radio programs for class work which otherwise could not be heard during school hours.

No action was taken by the board on requests for release of school children to pick fruit. Superintendent Keefe reported he had received requests, but added that he doubted the school's legal right to release the children. He said he had asked the legal department at Harrisburg for an opinion.

Mahlon P. Hartzell, Sr., school board secretary, was authorized to obtain bids on furnishing coal for the schools, and will report at the next meeting. Superintendent Keefe said the schools had a supply on hand sufficient until January 1.

Approve Concert Request

Bond for the Gettysburg National bank, treasurer of school funds, was fixed by the board at $50,000. Permission was voted to the Gettysburg Concert association for use of the high school auditorium for the winter concert series at $15 a (Please turn to Page 2)

LARGE AUDIENCE ATTENDS FIRST SUNDAY VESPER

A large and appreciative audience was in attendance at the first of a series of musical vespers services held in the Centenary Methodist church on Sunday evening, when a program of religious music was presented by the Fleming Sisters, a gospel quintet from Dillsburg, students of music at the Messiah Bible school, Grantham. The entire program was sung a cappella. Rev. Grantas E. Hoopert, pastor of Centenary church, worked with the sisters for a period of two years, when they first embarked upon their musical singing career. There will be a return engagement of the group, tentatively in November.

Rev. Mr. Hoopert gave a five-minute meditation at the service, on the theme "The Inspiration of Church Music." Other participants in the evening's program were Miss Jean and Miss Betty Miller, who led the devotions, and Miss Jacqueline Baughman and Miss Janet Kerns, who received the offering. The pastor is endeavoring to obtain a male quartet for next Sunday evening's service, to which the public is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ecker, daughter, Marian, and son, Donald, were among those entertained at a family dinner on Sunday at the home of Mr. Ecker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ecker, Westminster. Other guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Black, Mr. and Mrs. William Ecker, Kingsdale; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ecker, and John Sauble, near Taneytown, and Mildred Ecker, Union Bridge.

DDT SPRAY AT ARENDTSTVILLE KILLS INSECTS

Arendtsville was practically fly and mosquito free today, according to residents of the borough who were high in their praise of the borough council and others who were instrumental in having the town and surrounding area sprayed with DDT solution Monday morning.

Housewives said that for probably the first time this summer they were able to stay out of doors after dark Monday evening without being bothered by mosquitoes.

E. D. Bushman, general storekeeper there, said he had not seen a live fly all day but that hundreds of dead flies were to be found. Several housewives reported that birdbaths and similar receptacles were filled with dead bugs and insects.

Two-Hour Job

Bushman paid tribute to Dr. Fred Lewis, of the Arendtsville fruit laboratory, who suggested the plan; Dr. Raymond Hale, of the Arendtsville board of health, and M. E. Knouse, who backed the project financially, for their service to the community in suggesting and arranging for the spraying of the town by airplane.

A Coatesville air dusting service was engaged for the project with the plane starting its work over Arendtsville at 8 o'clock Monday morning. It took nearly two hours to completely cover the area with the spray.

Particular attention was paid by the pilot to swampy areas, with the plane passing over such areas a number of times in order to thoroughly cover the breeding places of the insects.

VFW CARNIVAL DRAWS CROWD

Operating under the sponsorship of the Gettysburg post No. 15 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Caravella Amusements opened a week's stand on the fair grounds on West High street Monday evening with a fair-sized crowd. Borough police made a check of the show and described the show as "clean."

The show features six rides, five shows and the "Aerial La Sales" who perform their gymnastics 100 feet in the air without the aid of a net or other safety device. There is a ferris wheel, merry-go-round, octopus, a miniature train and two types of plane rides.

The side shows present freaks from all parts of the world, a "hall of science," a fun house and other features.

On Saturday afternoon from 1 to 5 o'clock, there will be a special matinee for children with the youngsters being admitted to the grounds free. Prices on rides will be reduced for the afternoon.

The show management said that from Gettysburg the carnival will make a 670-mile trip to King's Tree, S. C., to begin a fall tour through the southern states.

ROTARY HEARS ABOUT HEART DISEASE, CARE

Causes and care of heart diseases were discussed Monday night at the regular meeting of Rotary at the YWCA with members viewing a motion picture on "Be Kind to Your Heart" and hearing a talk by Dr. Allen W. Cowley, chief of medical service of the Polyclinic hospital, Harrisburg, on "Be Your Age for Your Heart's Sake."

Both the picture and Doctor Cowley stressed the need for older individuals to "take it easy."

Both the doctor and the picture tended to minimize the dangers from heart trouble—provided the patient learns to "live within the limitations imposed by the disease."

"Act Your Age"

Pointing out that "millions of people with bad eyesight learn to adopt the rules imposed for those who wear glasses and continue, to lead a full and happy life," the motion picture, sponsored by the State Medical Association, pointed out that "people with a heart condition can do the same thing."

Doctor Cowley, stating that heart trouble is the number 1 disease today, added that reasons for the increase in heart trouble include the fact that more people are living to be older, and that better facilities permit earlier diagnosis.

"Heart trouble is not the beginning of the end—it merely means that you must begin to act your age," Doctor Cowley declared.

"The heart, as you grow older, loses much of the elasticity it had when you were 16 or 17. Then when the heart was called upon for heavy duty during competition it became tired, but it soon recovered. Just remember, you trained months for the huge exertion of a single foot race when you were in school. As you get older the heart still gets tired under strain, but it takes longer for it to recover."

Many Types of Disease

Pointing out that "everyone has hardening of the arteries as he grows older," Doctor Cowley added that, "in some the arteries harden more than others, but all have it. And if you force yourself too much, heart trouble is bound to occur."

"There are many types of heart disease," the Harrisburg physician pointed out. "Some types need surgery and are cured in that way, some are practically incurable, but what we mean usually when we talk about heart disease is what you might term professional heart disease, the type that occurs most in professional men, who in a way live by their wits, who are constantly in a state of nervous tension. They are the men who die of heart trouble in their 50's while at work."

"And that is the type of heart disease that can be cared for by simply being one's age."

Mares Sherman, vice president, presided at the meeting with 51 present. The speaker was introduced by Dr. Bruce N. Wolff, surgeon at the Warner hospital.

CHURCH JAMMED FOR SERVICES

Mt. Joy Lutheran church was filled to capacity for its three special services in observance of Homecoming Day and the 95th anniversary of the dedication of the congregation's first church building, on Sunday.

The services were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Charles E. Held. Offerings netted almost $1,000 and will be placed in the church's fund for a pipe organ.

Many former members and their families and former pastors were among the throng that gathered for the day's services. The Rev. J. Wilbur Gouker, Philadelphia, delivered the morning sermon and the Rev. Walter E. Waybright, Newville, both former members of Mt. Joy church, was the afternoon preacher.

The Rev. Dr. M. R. Hamsher, of Harrisburg, president of the Central Pennsylvania Synod of the United Lutheran church, delivered the sermon in the evening and he and the Rev. Mr. Waybright assisted Pastor Held in the reception and dedication of many memorials presented to the church at that service.

The Rev. Dr. L. A. Bush of Bolling Springs, and the Rev. Herbert H. Schmidt, Gettysburg, were former pastors who spoke briefly. Dr. Dwight P. Putnam, Gettysburg, also spoke at the evening service.

Jews Transported To Camp

Use Clubs, Fire Hoses To Empty Transports Of Jews

Hamburg, Germany, Sept. 9 (P)—British troops using clubs and fire hoses emptied today the last of three transports which brought the exodus 1947 Jews to Germany.

Some kicking, screaming Jews, their heads bloodied in 90 minutes of fighting aboard, were carried bodily from the transport, the Runnymede Park, after a sitdown strike against landing.

An official British casualty report said 33 Jews, including 13 women, were injured and that 19 of them were hospitalized. An earlier report said three British soldiers were hospitalized with injuries.

Correspondents on the Docks

Counted at least six Jewish men with bleeding heads. About 20 others were borne down the gangplank face downward, as if unconscious.

The violence attending the unloading of the Runnymede Park contrasted with the peaceable embarkation of the refugees aboard the Empire Rival a few hours earlier. The first of the transports, the Ocean Vigour, was emptied, with some violence, yesterday.

Vans and trains left the Hamburg docks with the refugees for displaced persons' quarters in the area nearby. Thus was completed another phase in the odyssey which began July 10 when the Jews began a futile attempt to reach Palestine aboard the Exodus 1947 from the port of Sete, France.

The steel-helmeted troops undertook the forcible disembarkation of the Jews aboard the Runnymede Park after the passengers rejected two ultimatums to leave peacefully.

When some 300 British troops moved into position for the operation, armed with clubs and wearing tear-gas goggles, many of the Jews began to leave peacefully. But others resisted bitterly.

The troops turned firehoses on the shouting and singing refugees who resisted attempts to force them up from the holds.

Jews who pressed against the barred windows of the police vans bringing them on the last leg of this journey looked bruised and disheveled, eye-witnesses said, and the clothing of many was torn. The convey of vans was accompanied by a bus full of blue uniformed military government security officers, two military police jeeps and a truck containing about 40 German police.

The Jews will live in Nissen huts and tents, pending screening and disposition.

President And 1,600 Other 'Polliwogs' Equator - Bound

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Aboard U.S.S. Missouri with President Truman, Sept. 9 (P)—President Harry S. (Senior Polliwog) Truman fell victim to the war of nerves aboard this equator-bound battleship today.

The Chief Executive and more than 1,600 other polliwogs—people who have never proved their endurance by "crossing the line"—will have to show their mettle Thursday.

Rumors of what is in store for them spread around the ship as the 350 "shellbacks" who will conduct their initiation held secret meetings and whispered ominously in little groups.

The Missouri was about 270 miles off Ponta Dorela, coastal city of the state of Espirito Santo, Brazil, early today. Extending eastward off this coast for 200 miles is a bank known as Abrolhos. Appropriately enough,

ADAMS TRANSIT COMPANY GOING OUT OF BUSINESS

The 23-year-old Adams Transit Co., Inc., which operated charter and scheduled bus service since 1924, is going out of business.

M. Stuart Danner, East Berlin, secretary and general manager of the company, which started business in Adams county with one bus in 1924, said Monday the organization was "liquidating its assets in an orderly manner and disposing of all rolling stock and franchises piecemeal to operators all over the state."

Danner said he could not reveal the names of the buyers or the financial considerations involved because the deals were in the midst of legal proceedings. He further stated that there should be no lapse in bus service until the new owners take over at a future date, as yet undetermined.

Have 26 Buses

The company official said no buyers have yet been found for the scheduled run passenger franchises in this area. Total rolling stock includes 26 buses and two trucks, used for daily freight service from York to Gettysburg.

Motor Freight Express, Inc., York, has purchased the trucks and franchise for the Gettysburg freight run, Danner stated.

Danner said scheduled bus runs in this area were on the York-New Freedom, East Berlin-York via Abbotstown, York-Shrewsbury and Hanover-Harrisburg.

Started With One Bus

In addition, the company had been contracting with a number of York county school districts to transport children to and from school.

Liquidation of assets was started August 27, Danner said. The company was formed in Adams county in November, 1924, starting as a local line with one bus. It began operating in and out of York in 1927 and moved its headquarters to York in 1937.

LOCAL WEAVERS SCORE SUCCESS ON WEST COAST

Weaving methods taught at Guernsey by Mrs. Milo Gallinger and her daughter, Josephine Couch, attracted widespread interest at the National Weavers' conference held recently at Lausanne hall on the Willamette university campus, Salem, Oregon, according to newspaper accounts published in several Oregon newspapers.

Mrs. Gallinger, director of the conference, and her daughter, took their equipment from Guernsey to the West Coast for the demonstration they gave at the two-week conference, and showed the eastern way of weaving to West Coast weavers. The equipment used was made by Milo Gallinger.

The conference numbered 60 members from Oklahoma, Washington, Montana, Oregon, California, Kansas, Wisconsin, New York and Pennsylvania. Four guild presidents and representatives of Oregon State and Corvallis colleges were present.

CHAPMAN HELD FOR COURT TERM

Clifford (Skinny) Chapman, 26, of 134 South Washington street, formerly of Fairfield, was held for the November term of court on a charge of aggravated assault and battery by Justice of the Peace John Bashore this morning, and committed to jail in default of $1,000 bail. He signed a plea of guilty.

Chapman, for whose arrest a warrant had been issued, was taken into custody on York street at 6 o'clock this morning by Borough Police Officer Albert L. Wolford.

The complainant in the case is Paul Lupp, Breckenridge street, a driver for the Little Taxi company. Lupp alleged, according to borough police, that he received a call from Chapman to come to the Panorama Inn, five miles south of Gettysburg, on the Emmitsburg road, early last Sunday morning, and that when he got there Chapman struck him and tore his clothing.

According to the complaint, Lupp had a new driver with him that he was breaking in, and Chapman refused to get in the taxicab because of this other man. Lupp told police that he got out of the cab at the Panorama Inn to talk to Chapman, and said the latter struck him without warning and knocked him down. He was treated later by a physician.

ONLY 377 CAST VOTES BY 1 P. M. IN GETTYSBURG

The vote up to 1 o'clock this afternoon in the primary election in Gettysburg was extremely light, a survey showing that only 377 affiliated voters out of a total of 3,027 who are eligible, had cast their ballots at the respective polling places.

Four years ago, at the primary election of 1943, 363 voters out of a possible number slightly in excess of 2,700, had voted by 1 o'clock.

Registration lists show 1931 Republicans and 1,096 Democrats registered this year. Out of these totals, by 1 o'clock today 281 Republicans and 96 Democrats had voted. The vote by districts at that hour:

1st ward, 1st precinct, 61 Republicans; 19 Democrats.

1st ward, 2nd precinct, 56 Republicans; 17 Democrats.

Second ward, 89 Republicans; 39 Democrats.

Third ward, 75 Republicans; 21 Democrats.

Grants Vote To Soldier

In the second ward a number of election officials were appointed when it was discovered at opening time that no clerks were present, and in Cumberland township at the election booth on the Carlisle road near the new jail site, only one member of the board reported this morning, and it was necessary to break a window to open this place for voting.

Judge Harvey A. Gross, York county, was sitting in court here today to act on any matters pertaining to the primary election, and Judge W. C. Sheely of Adams county was sitting in Fulton county today.

Only one voting case came before Judge Gross this morning, a 3rd ward resident who had been in the armed (Please turn to Page 2)

JUGULAR CUT IN FREAK ACCIDENT

A leaning fence post that dropped into the path of a passing car almost caused the death this morning of Chester Chronister, 28, York Springs R. 2.

Chronister left his home shortly before 7:30 o'clock this morning and was driving along a country lane leading from his house to the York Springs-Hanover road, midway between York Springs and Hampton.

State police, who investigated, said that a fence post that had been leaning on the top of a cut through which the road passed, had dropped level with the car windshield. When Chronister drove through the cut the windshield struck the post and glass splattered through the vehicle.

One piece caused a deep laceration of the right side of his neck, cutting the jugular vein.

Holding his neck to prevent as much loss of blood as possible, Chronister drove to the nearest neighbors, who rushed him to the Warner hospital at top speed. He was admitted as a patient.

Horse Destroyed After Car Crash

A car driven by Monroe Miller, 20, Gettysburg R. 4, struck a horse owned by Jesse Scott, Gettysburg R. 4, Hunterstown road, in Straban township Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

State police said the horse was running free from a lane to a pasture, and as the horse crossed a legislative route it leaped directly in front of the car. The horse, valued at $150, was shot when investigation disclosed it had broken a leg in the mishap. Miller's car had $450 damage.

FIRE ALARM

The fire company was called at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening to extinguish a fire on Chambersburg street at the Hotel Eberhart. Firemen said the fire, believed to have been caused when some gas leaked from a car to the gutter and was ignited, was put out by passerby before the company arrived.

COUNTY FRUIT GROWERS NEED PEACH PICKERS

Thousands of bushels of peaches in Adams county will go to waste within the next few days unless additional help is secured to harvest the crop, growers indicated today.

Among those growers reported having a deficiency of help at the present time are E. B. Romig, near Arendtsville, and William M. Lott, Gardners R. 2, both of whom stressed the need of harvest hands.

An estimated 3,500 bushels of peaches hang in the balance at the Romig orchard near Brysonia where no peaches had been picked prior to today. Starting the year with three pickers, Romig has been able to secure enough hands to take care of the home orchard of 30 acres at Arendtsville. Today 11 pickers were secured and sent to the Brysonia orchard to start work there.

3,000 Bushels Lost

Romig estimated that some 3,000 bushels of peaches had already dropped from the trees at Brysonia. The peaches there are dropping rapidly, Romig said, and by Friday all not picked by that time will be on the ground.

"It is a serious problem," Romig said, pointing out that "last year the crop was earlier and the high school youths were able to help out to a large extent in harvesting the crop before school started. Now we have a few East Berlin students who work from 4 p. m. to 7 p. m. each evening, but we need between 25 and 30 additional pickers if we are to save the crop."

William Lott said today that 2,000 bushels in his orchards will be lost if they are not picked within the next day or two. The peaches are already too ripe for packing, but would be usable otherwise if they can be harvested quickly, Mrs. Lott was scheduled to go to New Oxford this morning to ask aid of the school there in securing additional pickers. The Lott orchards also need about 25 additional pickers if they are to save the crop.

M. T. Hartman, county farm agent, today urged all persons, who can find the time, to offer their services to growers in the attempt to salvage the peach crop, which has already been hit hard by bad weather and other causes.

THIRD DAY OF RIOTS IN INDIA

New Delhi, Sept. 9 (AP)—India's capital awoke to the renewed crackle of gun fire today as the orgy of communal rioting which has paralyzed the twin cities of old and New Delhi entered its third bloody day.

During the night there was little sound of violence, but with daybreak the sound of firing resumed. Most of it appeared to be coming from the outskirts of New Delhi although an occasional shot could still be heard in the Connaught Circus area where looters clashed with authorities Sunday.

Mingled with the gunfire came an intermittent wave of shouting from thousands of throats. The screaming of slogans by Hindus, Moslems and Sikhs has been one of the favorite ways of conducting a war of nerves during the recent communal disturbances.

In Connaught Circus some food shops re-opened under military guard and quickly had long lines of patrons whose supplies have run dangerously low. Housewives carrying shopping bags walked past the body of a riot victim, which lay covered with a cloth.

Correspondents driving through the twin cities counted 27 bodies of persons killed by rioters and police or military gunfire. In one street among eight dead bodies a wounded man lay writhing in pain.

A reception was given to welcome the staff and conference guests by the Salem Weavers' Guild, which was attended by more than 400 residents of Salem, and visitors from Portland and Seattle. "Creative Crafts," the Gallinger project at Guernsey, was invited to repeat the conference at Berkley, Cal. in 1949.

"Most enjoyable of the many programs arranged were the trips to the Salem linen mills," Mrs. Gallinger said, "where flax is grown and processed to make linen twine for factories, as well as linen thread for weavers. There are three large linen mills in Salem, as well as the extensive flax industries of the Oregon prisms, where the raising of flax was started years ago by Governor Lord of Oregon. His daughter was present at the reception and entertained the staff in her gardens just before this occasion."

Entertained by C. C.
"The Chamber of Commerce," Mrs. Gallinger reported, "also took the staff and conference guests through some of the main city gardens, and the state capitol buildings, where many kinds of Oregon woods are put to use for paneling and flooring. The conference staff closed the conference with a day spent on top of Mount Hood, highest peak in Oregon."

Mrs. Gallinger and Miss Couch were interviewed by David Eyre of the Oregon Journal, and coast reporter for Time magazine, who plans to use an article on the conference in the latter magazine at an early date, Mrs. Gallinger said.

Babe Causes Slight Holdup In Holdup

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—There was a slight holdup during a holdup in a Central Park West apartment late yesterday, while one of a robber pair squeezed an orange to quiet 11-month-old Susan Antoinette Payle.

Lt. Cmdr. Eddie Payle of South Hempstead, Long Island, had taken his wife and daughter to visit his mother, Mrs. Mercedes Payle. The latter was not at the door to welcome them for the reason that she was tied hand and foot in a storage closet. Instead, they found two robbers.

The baby's hungry cries at this juncture moved the robbers to action. While one remained to guard the Payles, the other went to the kitchen, squeezed an orange and fed the baby. Then they trusted the commander and put him in the closet with his mother, tied his wife to a chair with the baby in her lap, and left with $500 in cash and jewelry, police said.

The younger Mrs. Payle freed herself a short time later and summoned aid.

Court Upholds Act's Affidavit Provision

Fort Worth, Tex., Sept. 9 (AP)—In the first such ruling on the Taft-Hartley law, Federal District Judge T. Whitfield Davidson yesterday upheld the requirement that labor unions file affidavits that their officers are not communists.

The judge declared that the non-communist provision is fully constitutional—legal, consistent and proper.

The ruling was made at a hearing here involving the Oil Workers International Union (CIO). He held that the CIO had not complied with the law, thus the OWIU did not have recourse to the NLRB.

The OWIU had filed a petition seeking to force regional NLRB Director Edwin A. Elliott to count ballots in an election of workers of the Deep Oil Development Company at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Pastor Gives $10 Each To Members

Kalamazoo, Mich., Sept. 9 (AP)—Each of 350 members of the Simpson Methodist church here had a $10 bill today to "invest for God" by November 30.

The Rev. Paul Schanzlin distributed the bills to his congregation Sunday morning. He asked each member to return the money, with any profit it earns, on "ingathering Sunday" the last day of November.

The minister said he hoped $25,000 for an addition to the church could be raised from the $3,500 distributed.

8-Day Search To Get Dollar Bill In China

Shanghai, Sept. 9 (AP)—Blacksmith Chou Chu-Ju thought himself fortunate when the judge fined him one Chinese dollar in a slander case—but the smallest change he could find in all Shanghai was a $10,000-dollar note.

(Single dollars have been out of circulation nearly two years, and it now takes 400 of them to equal one U. S. cent.)

Chou searched Shanghai for days and eventually offered the court a 10,000-dollar note (25 cents, U. S.) but the judge said the fine was one dollar—no more, no less.

Today, eight days after he was fined, Chou found a one-dollar bill.

Turnpike Prices Attacked By Dent

Harrisburg, Sept. 9.—Twenty-cent ice cream cones and sandwiches "not worth waiting for," today led to a demand for a state investigation of "exorbitant food prices," charged by concessionaires along the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

State Senator John H. Dent (D, Westmoreland), requested the inquiry, in a letter to Governor James H. Duff.

"I am serious, Governor, in requesting an immediate investigation of the exorbitant food prices being charged the traveling public on the Pennsylvania Turnpike," Dent said in his protest.

"I know, and you know that the restaurants are monopolistic and therefore should be able to give real value instead of gouging the traveling public, who have no choice when on the Turnpike. If nothing else can be done, I certainly believe we should amend the Turnpike law to include competitive enterprises."

The super-highway's restaurants are operated by a chain under a sublease from an oil company which holds the exclusive right to operate gasoline stations.

"I have been very much encouraged by the interest shown by churches and various organizations here," Mr. Whitmoyer said. BULLET SQUAD LEAVES MONDAY FOR GRID CAMP

Fifteen lettermen from the varsity of 1946 and 19 sophomores from the undefeated Gettysburg college junior varsity of last season were among the 42 candidates to report at the college Monday afternoon for physical examinations preparatory to leaving later in the afternoon for the pre-season training camp at Laurel Lake, near Pine Grove Furnace.

The Bullets will return to the campus on September 17 to resume drills in preparation for the opening game with Western Maryland college here on October 4.

Coach Henry T. Bream, now entering his twenty-first campaign as head grid mentor, views the prospects for the coming season with more optimism than the 1946 season when his charges won four and lost five.

Senior Joe Cervino, Haddon Heights, N. J., and Sophomore Ray Kreider, Lititz, headed the seven backfield lettermen of the 18 prospects for back positions. Cervino led the scoring parade for the Bullets a year ago when he accounted for six touchdowns and eleven extra points for a total of 47 points.

Top Passer Back
Kreider, the outstanding passer and broken-field runner of the 1946 eleven, is virtually certain of a varsity post. His pass completion record was better than 500 in his freshman year. Coach Bream will probably rely on the sophomore ace for most of his aerial fireworks.

Other lettermen reporting for backfield positions include: Dick Contable, Norristown; Ned Lint, Steelton; Charles Rambo, Woodbury, N. J.; Ross Sachs, Gettysburg, and Russ Wileman, Harrisburg. Rambo was the third ranking punter among small colleges in 1946 with an average of slightly less than 40 yards per boot, and was among the top ten in pass reception.

Letterman Howard Cauffman, Norristown; Robert Edwards, Haddon Heights, N. J.; and Dudley Tremble, Teaneck, N. J., are end candidates. At tackle Bream has Martin Pasalic, Harrisburg; Bob Schlegel, Ashland, and Bill Thomson, Norristown, all of whom gained their letter a year ago.

Guards Art Smith, Glenolden, Pa., and Les Gianni, Norristown, are the remaining veterans.

Playoffs To Begin In Interstate Loop

(By The Associated Press)
The Interstate league's post-season semi-final playoffs begin tonight with Trenton, winner of the league's regular season, meeting Allentown at Trenton and Harrisburg playing at Wilmington.

The winners of the two best-of-seven series will meet in a seven-game final series.

Wilmington finished in number two spot in the season's standings with Allentown in third and Harrisburg fourth.

TO PICK STATE WOMAN CHAMP

Harrisburg, Sept. 9 (AP)—Sixteen of the state's leading feminine golfers moved into match play rounds today to name a new Pennsylvania state women's golf champion by Friday.

Miss Helen Sigel, of the Philadelphia Country club, whose record-breaking score of 75 easily won the medal in the Eleventh Annual State championship yesterday, was the player that all contenders feared as match play started.

Two other Philadelphians were looked upon as "dark horse" contenders for the championship that was held last year by Mrs. Dorothy Germain Porter, of Llanerch Country club, Philadelphia. They were Mrs. John Gessler, Whitemarsh, whose 80 score was good for second place, and Mrs. John G. Capers, Jr., of Merion, last year's runner-up who chalked up an 81 in the qualifying test.

Should form hold good during the early rounds the two "dark horses" will clash in the Lower Bracker semifinal on Thursday, while Miss Sigel was not expected to have much difficulty in reaching the 36-hole final, scheduled for the hilly links at Fort Hunter.

Miss Jane Martin, western Pennsylvania title-holder from Shannopin, Miss Betty Fehl, of Reading, and Mrs. Thomas Molan, of New Castle, were other qualifiers who were conceded an outside chance for the title after the close of the qualifying round.

Miss Sigel played excellent golf to shatter the course record by three strokes, the previous low of 78 set by Miss Virginia Fox ten years ago.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—A Kentucky college president, Louisville's John W. Taylor, proposes that colleges should hire football players "just like professors" instead of hiring them by the present system. . . . But what spectator would pay three bucks (or more) to watch eleven college professors. . . . Ohio State U., which drew 603,000 cash customers for last football season, expects to top that mark this year. . . . And after typing that information, Tub-Thumper Bill Snapp took time out to wish he was working on percentage. . . . Jersey Jones figures it is ironic that Rocky Graziano, a New York resident, will have to pay an income tax on his ring earnings to a state which bars him from fighting. And if he clashes with Tony Zale again before January 1, Rocky's tax this year will be more than enough to pay Commissioner Eddie Egan's salary.

JOB INSURANCE
During the summer an umpire from Jersey City, Bill Godfrey, wandered into the International league office looking for a job and was brushed off with the usual "leave your address" . . . That same evening the umpire assigned to a twilight doubleheader at Jersey City got mixed up and failed to appear. So Prexy Shag Shaughnessy called the number Bill had left and put him to work. . . . The upshot was a regular job on the I. L. staff.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE
Since losing a couple of assistant coaches at the U. of San Francisco, smiling Ed McKee reports he has "going back to Texas Tech coaching technique." . . . That means he's doing the hard work himself. . . . The Detroit Lions already are starting a campaign for Mervin Pregulman as All-League center. . . . The grid Yankees' Ben Raimondi lived on the same street as Sid Luckman in Brooklyn, attended the same high school (Erasmus Hall) and once tried to enter the same college (Columbia) but all the time the footballer Ben really admired was Ace Parker. . . . Bill Boni, who has been sports editing Stars and Stripes in Europe for a year, will be back home this month, ready to listen to anyone who wants to hire a top-rank sportswriter.

END OF THE LINE
In his senior year in high school, Bert Lyttel hit 360 and belted 20 homers for the baseball team (according to the Garden publicity dept.). The same source reports Ben wasn't quite 17 when he joined the navy. . . . So you gotta figure Lyttel must have been smarter than most fighters to be a high school senior at that age. . . . If you think that Jersey City-Montreal pennant race was close, look at the Class 'D' Alabama-Georgia league. Heading into the Labor Day doubleheaders to end the season, Opelika, Valley

ST. LAWRENCE HAS 17 VETS; HERE NOV. 15

Canton, N. Y., Sept. 9 — More than 40 candidates for the 1947 St. Lawrence university football squad reported to Coach Roy B. Clogston Monday morning for the initial practice session of the season. Included in the roster of players invited back were 17 lettermen of the 1946 team which won five contests and lost two.

Happy as he is at the prospect of having so many experienced players on hand, Clogston nevertheless will be without the services of the two men who provided more than three-fourths of the offensive punch of last year's eleven. The two graduated backs are triple-threat half-back Jim Hefti, who moves on to professional football with the Washington Redskins, and quarterback Oscar Cochi, who will be handling coaching assignments at St. Lawrence this fall.

Cochi's vacated spot behind the center in Clogston's T formation will be more easily filled than Hefti's left halfback position. At the present moment the Larry mentor has no one available who can run with Hefti's crushing power, or kick and pass as capably as the big halfback.

The forward wall should be adequately manned during the coming season by a combination of 13 lettermen and several players who have either transferred from other schools or enrolled last year.

The schedule: September 27, Union, home; October 4, Alfred, night, away; 11, Ithaca, home; 18, Clarkson, away; 25, Middlebury, away; November 1, Cortland, home; 8, Buffalo, away; 15, Gettysburg, away.

ARMY HAS ONLY THREE '46 VETS

West Point, N. Y., Sept. 9 (AP) — Army, the college football team with the most glittering record of modern times, will enter the 1947 season with only three starters from its great 1946 team.

"We will be outperformed in seven of our nine games," says Coach Earl H. (Red) Blaik. "But we are still the national champions until we are defeated."

There is no defiance at West Point. It would be difficult to take such a pose when gone are Glenn Davis and Felix Blanchard, three-time All-America backs; Arnold Tucker, a mighty quarterback; Hand Feldberg and Barney Poole, indestructible ends; and such line stalwarts as Art Gerometta, Sheldon Biles, and Jim Enos.

On the other hand there is a feeling of solid confidence in the ranks of those who follow the practice sessions of the big, rangy Army squad.

At right guard on Blaik's current first team is Joseph Henry, 21-year-old 190-pounder from Clearfield, Pa. Among the second string backs is Arnold Galiffa, 185 pounds, of Donora, Pa., at quarterback.

Kerr Has 50-Man Squad At Leb. Valley

Annyville, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP)—Andy Kerr was greeted by a 50-man squad when he took over a new head football coach at Little Lebanon Valley college—largest group to report here in a number of years.

With 22 holdovers from last year's team, Kerr yesterday began drills in preparation for Lebanon Valley's opening game against Moravian college October 4. Assisting Kerr are Grant "Scoop" Peeser, former Lebanon Valley football star and last year's head coach, and Dick Fox, former Temple gridiron player.

Defending Champs In Final Contest

Harrisburg, Sept. 9 (AP)—The defending champions from Spring Grove, Md., meet the Heurich Brewers of Washington, D. C., tonight at Island Park in the final game of the 1947 All-American Amateur Baseball championship.

Spring Grove is undefeated in the current diamond tournament and rested up yesterday while the Brewers were catching up by taking a double-header from two rivals.

First the Washington entry turned back the Oakmont club of Pittsburgh, 5 to 1, in a game originally scheduled for the morning, but moved back to a twilight contest when an all-night rain left the field too muddy for play.

On the heels of this victory the Brewers came back for a night game against Elkton, Md., and again came out on the long end of the score, 3 to 1, behind the effective hurling of Otis Printz.

Eastern League

(By The Associated Press)
Four of the Eastern league's top pitchers, three righthanders and a southpaw, will take the mound tonight in the opening games of the semi-final playoffs.

At Utica, Manager Eddie Sawyer of the champion Blue Sox will lead with the Veteran Dale Jones against the third place Wilkes-Barre Barons. Bill Norman will take the blanket off Mike Garcia.

An even better mound duel shapes up at Scranton where the fourth place Miners will use the league's leading hurler, Lefty Bill Kennedy, who has won 14 and lost 2.

The second place Albany Senators will counter with Jim Walsh, who sports a seven-game winning streak after dropping his first start of the season. The teams will play two games in the opening cities and then shift to Wilkes-Barre and Albany for the next three of the best of seven series.

PFL Council May Stress Politics

Harrisburg, Sept. 9 (AP)—A resolution calling for the establishment of active political action committees on a state and local level was called up for consideration today by the executive council of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor.

The resolution was presented at the AFL state convention last spring, but was never formally acted upon, explained President James L. McDevitt.

Passage of the resolution will lay the foundation for greatly expanded political activity by the state AFL particularly in the 1948 Presidential election.

"The proposal has been approved in principle," said McDevitt, "but it is necessary for the council to work out the details."

Candidate Dies On Election Eve

WILLIAMS AND WALKER LEAD

New York, Sept. 9 (AP)—Harry Walker appears a cinch to win the National league batting crown while Ted Williams has improved his chances of copping the American league title.

Walker, the fleet-footed outfielder of the Philadelphia Phillies, added two points to his total in the past seven days to increase his top mark to 356, leading second place Phil Cavarretta of Chicago by 36 points. Frank McCormick of Boston is hitting 352, only four points behind Walker but it is questionable if he will be at bat enough times to receive official recognition from President Ford Prick of the National league.

Williams, the Boston Red Sox slugger, slipped three percentage points but his 337 gave him 10 points on the field on the basis of averages including Sunday's games.

Williams actually gained a point as Runner-up Dale Mitchell of Cleveland dropped four points to 327. Ted collected nine hits in 30 times at bat while Mitchell batted 11 in 38 appearances.

Taft Wright of Chicago's White Sox moved into third place by upping his average 10 points to 325, three points ahead of Barney McCosky of Philadelphia and Joe DiMaggio of New York, tied for fourth at 322.

Other leaders are Johnny Pesky of Boston, 321; Lou Boudreau of Cleveland 319; George Kelly of Detroit, 312; Luke Appling, 311 and George McQuinn, Yankees 302.

YANKS MAY SET ALL TIME MARK IN ATTENDANCE

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

The magnetic New York Yankees, only baseball club to lure 2,000,000 fans past the turnstiles in a single season, not only have repeated the stunt today, but give promise of making it two and a half million before the season is over.

With 53,101 coming out to the Yankee Stadium to watch last night's tussle with the Cleveland Indians, the Yankees now have attracted 2,023,643 paid admissions in 62 home games. That is an average gate per game of 32,639.

Should the same attendance prevail for the remainder of the home season, the Yankees, with 15 more to play at the Stadium, should wind up with something like 2,500,000. Last year the club set a record of 2,265,512 admissions.

Yesterday's crowd was treated to a brilliant bit of relief pitching by Bob Feller, the Indians' great right-hander, who saved a 4-3 victory for Bob Lemon with some tremendous clutch hurling. Rapid Robert came to the rescue of Lemon in the last of the ninth with the Yankees having runners on first and third and nobody out.

Feller Halts Rally
Feller promptly forced Billy Johnson to raise a soft pop to Third Baseman Ken Keltner, got Aaron Robinson on a tap in front of the plate and ended the game by fanning Phil Rizzuto. Joe DiMaggio and George McQuinn had opened the inning with singles off Lemon.

The defeat left the Yankees still needing a combination of eight wins and Boston Red Sox losses to clinch the flag. Lemon, who limited the Yankees to six hits in notching his eighth victory against four defeats, batted in the winning run in the eighth with his third single of the game. He scored Hal Peck, whose pinch hit double earlier in the inning had tied up the game. The blows came off Bobo Newsom who dropped his 10th game of the year.

He has won 10. McQuinn accounted for the first two Yankee runs with successive home runs in the second and fourth innings.

In the only other game played in the majors, the New York Giants spotted the Pittsburgh Pirates eight runs in the first seven innings, then went on to win 10-8. Held to two singles for seven innings, the Giants pounced upon Fritz Ostermuller for seven runs in the eighth and knocked over three more in the ninth to win. The big blow was Lloyd Gearhart's two-run homer in the ninth which put the Giants ahead 9-8.

Mize Falls Behind
Johnny Mize failed to hit a homer and thus fell three behind Babe others said they knew of no other way to get a candidate on the ticket at this time.

Polio Total Climbs To 190 Cases In Pa.

Harrisburg, Sept. 9 (AP)—A total of 190 cases of infantile paralysis had been reported by the state Department of Health by the past week-end, only 15 cases for the same period in 1946.

The department said reports had been received of only six new cases, three in York county, and one each in Columbia, Erie and Beaver counties.

York county officials said five new cases were reported to county authorities during the past two days, following a lull in the disease since last Thursday.

Health Department officials pointed out that these new cases might not have been officially reported yet to state authorities. Four of the York cases were of the bulbar type, requiring treatment in iron lungs.

The Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals, both idle yesterday, begin their final drive for the National league flag today, the front-running Brooks taking on the Cubs in Chicago in the first of a 10-game swing through the west. The Cards are host to the Philadelphia Phils, the first of four eastern invaders.

The Brooks, leading by five and a half games, have 18 games left to play, 14 on foreign fields. Of the Cards' 21 remaining games, 14 are at home.

Today's Talk

OTHERNESS

I have watched and studied people who are so much liked by other people. I have wanted to get the secret of this much-merited popularity. It is not difficult to discover.
Such people have an other-ness to them — they do all in their power to make others happy, to listen to others for advice, and do the unexpected simple things that draw others to them.

We all know such lovable people, and we so gladly tie to them as friends. I have never known anyone who exemplified this wonderful quality more than did my mother. Her whole life was lived for others. I am sure that not a single day of her life passed without something done for someone else. It was her joy to do so.

Probably no other figure in history can be said to have had this great quality of otherness as did Abraham Lincoln. He measured things from all sides. He gave the other fellow credit for intelligence, and for the same human qualities that he had. He tried to put himself in the shoes of the other fellow and to try and get his viewpoint.

None of us can make much progress without this quality of otherness becoming pronounced in us.
The greater part of all that we are, as successes, can be attributed to others, to a greater or less degree, so that in seeking to give out to others we merely seek to repay many invested kindnesses. And what better investment than to invest in the happiness of others?

Nations which emphasize their individualism and nationalism to the disadvantage of their neighbors and the other nations of the world, cannot hope to enjoy uninterrupted peace, either within their own borders or elsewhere. The greatest and noblest experiment ever attempted is that of the organization of the United Nations. But it will fail if it does not put to practice this principle of the rights and happiness of others.

What better word to define the Golden Rule than this one — otherness? It embodies all. If we keep it ever before us — and make use of it in actual practice, we are bound to taste happily of Life's ripe fruits!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Overloading Life."

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TO THE GREETERS

This I make an open letter to the managers I know

Of hotels I often visit as about the land I go.

Though I'm just a paper fellow,
there is welcome in my grip

And I think I am entitled to Greeter membership.

Though behind a desk I've never called arriving guests by name,

I have run a summer cottage and I'm sure it's much the same.

I've made countless reservations—rooms with bath and some without.

I've been bell boy, I've been porter and I've raced the place about.

Serving towels, soap and linen.

Every guest has had a bed.

I've provided entertainment and the best of food I've fed.

I've found bathing suits in corners and I've hung them up to dry.

As a greeter and fareweller I can surely qualify.

The help has been a problem in such troubled times as these.

But room service I have given, since my purpose is to please.

I provide the morning paper and umbrellas when it rains.

And with patience oft I listen when a guest of mine complains.

I've had no hotel experience on which to base my claim.

But I've run a summer cottage and it must be much the same.

FOOD DOLLAR IS GOING THROUGH WRINGER AGAIN

Chicago, Sept. 9 (AP)—America's shrinking food dollar was being dragged through the wringer again today by a somewhat general advance in staple commodity prices.

Except for a reduction of five cents a pound retail for margarine in New York, the general trend was upward in the faster moving race for economic adjustment.

For the fourth consecutive day,
The Associated Press index of 35 wholesale commodities reached another new all-time high yesterday at 192.26, compared with the 1926 base year of 100.

Included in the continued advances were meat, coffee, butter, tallow, eggs and corn. Moreover, the whole dairy outlook was far from a pretty picture as described by Russell Fifer, executive secretary of the American Butter Institute.

Dairy Supply Low

The dairy industry, Fifer said, is going into the winter with an exceptionally low supply of butter and cream in storage and with two per cent less milk cows than a year ago. Since the peak milk production in 1944, he added, the number of milk cows has dropped seven per cent while consumer population since the start of the war has increased 10,000,000, many of them now "in heavy milk drinking ages."

Butter climbed another cent a pound on the New York and Chicago mercantile exchanges yesterday to new peaks for the year.
Eggs advanced to 60 cents a dozen wholesale here, and porterhouse steak hit $1 a pound at New York retail outlets.

Probably foreshadowing further retail pork price hikes, hogs hit a new all-time high of $31.25 a hun-dredweight at the Denver stockyards yesterday, and a record top of $31 at the south San Francisco stockyards. Traders at Omaha,
Sioux City, Iowa, and East St.
Louis, Ill., snapped up the offerings there at $30 a hundredweight.

USSR RECOVERY IS SLOWER THAN EUROPE'S WEST

By SIGRID ARNE

Washington, Sept. 9 (AP)—Western Europe is making a quicker postwar comeback than Russia and her seven satellite nations, although both areas still are far short of their normal peacetime trade pattern.

The East-West discrepancy highlights a report drafted by top government researchers working on the Marshall plan for European recovery.

Russia chose, both for herself and her satellites, to boycott the mutual help program envisioned by Secretary of State Marshall. At the time American economists said the choice probably was made at the cost of lower living standards in the Soviet sphere.

Trade figures contained in the report made available today appear to bear out that prediction.

Foreign Trade Up

* They show that 1946 exports from the 12 countries of western Europe covered in the survey attained 453 per cent of the 1938 rate considered normal. The eight eastern countries, including Russia, show a recovery to only 39.6 per cent.

Russia herself, however, is enjoying a much healthier foreign trade than any of her satellites. Soviet exports are listed at 74.1 per cent of 1938 and imports at 96.8 per cent.
Total exports for Finland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Poland, are put at 32.2 per cent and imports at 34 per cent.

Western Europe's imports are rated at 68.7 per cent.

These figures, although they reveal that western Europe is able to export more than eastern Europe, also show that western Europe is piling up international debts faster, since it is buying more. And most of those debts are owed to the United States.

LESS THAN 30 PC. VOTE EXPECTED ACROSS STATE

(By The Associated Press)

The Taft-Hartley law, bitterly condemned by organized labor, highlighted issues in a special congressional election today as Pennsylvanians voted in the Keystone state's first postwar primary.

Little excitement marked campaigning and political leaders, predicted less than 30 per cent of the state's 4,300,000 voters in 67 counties would enter voting booths.

Polling places open 7 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, and close at 8 p. m.

Eyes On 8th District

There were a few exceptions where balloting was expected to be spirited.

In the 8th congressional district, comprising the rich farm-industrial counties of Lehigh and Bucks, organized labor sought to start a trend to repeal the Taft-Hartley act.

It is in this district that organized labor rallied behind Democrat Phil H. Storch in his fight for the seat vacated by the late Charles L. Gerlach, Republican.

The nation's labor and political leaders are watching this contest between Storch and Republican State Representative Franklin H. Lichtenwalter very closely as a possible indication of what may occur in next year's Presidential and Congressional balloting across the nation.

Taft-Hartley Issue

Storch, 36-year-old Allentown newspaperman and president of the CIO-Lehigh Valley Newspaper Guild, calls the Taft-Hartley law "a vicious piece of legislation against the working man." He has received the uncompromised backing of CIO President Philip Murray and other labor leaders.

Lichtenwalter, 37-year-old speaker of the state house, insists the Taft-Hartley law is bi-Partisan legislation, passed by majorities of both parties over the President's veto.

Gerlach represented the 8th Congressional district for 10 years and polled a 15,000-vote majority in recording his 1946 triumph. There are 72,000 Republican and 46,000 Democrats registered with a record outpouring of voters forecast.

Elsewhere, Pennsylvanians are to nominate candidates for mayor in Philadelphia and 27 third class cities. In the Quaker City, Republican incumbent Bernard Samuel is opposed by four candidates. Richardson Dilworth, backed by the Democratic city committee, faces opposition from one man.

Local option referendum on sale of liquor and beer will be held in some 220 municipalities with the biggest battle expected in the now wet Fayette county. In this predominantly industrial district, embracing cities like Uniontown and Connellsville, 238 liquor and beer licenses are at stake. Dry forces have been waging an intensive campaign and the voting is expected to be spirited.

Orphans court judgeships are at stake in seven counties, while nominees for common pleas court are to be selected in 20 counties.

Majority Ready To OK Atomic Report

Lake Success, Sept. 9 (AP)—A majority of the United Nations' Atomic Energy commission was ready today to give formal approval to the second commission report to the U.N. Security council.

The delegates said they expected Russia and Poland to vote against the report or abstain on the final ballot.

The report, whipped into near-final shape by two committees yesterday, deals with the organization, functions and powers of a proposed international atomic control agency. The final draft is being prepared now by the secretariat.

The full commission will meet tomorrow in its 13th session. The delegates said they expected that meeting to be purely formal, with statements all around and a vote on the final draft.

Delay Crucial UN Council Meeting

Lake Success, Sept. 9 (AP)—Behind-the-scenes efforts to find a compromise solution to the British Egyptian dispute were reported today to have failed to break the deadlock in the Security council, causing a 24-hour postponement of a crucial council meeting.

Late yesterday Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet delegate and council president, announced that the meeting set for 2 p. m. (EST) today had been postponed to that same hour tomorrow.

The delay was granted at the request of several delegates.

There appeared to be little prospect of immediate settlement as the delegates ended their 10-day vacation and went into huddles in Manhattan.

BACK TO WORK

Barnsley, England, Sept. 9 (AP)—Miners from 18 strikebound Yorkshire coal pits joined a back-to-work movement Monday but at least 19 collieries remained closed and nine others were partly affected by Britain's worst labor dispute in three years. Reporting these figures, the national coal board said there was no estimate of the total number of men still idle.

MUSIC OR MEDICINE

By Frank Riordan AP Newsfeatures

Chapter 1

The orchestra eased into its theme song, an odd bit called Piano Madness, the tune spotting Bruce Crane performing in his own incredible style at the piano. The throng, wedged deep around the orchestra dais at one end of the ballroom, whistled and cried for more in a prolonged ovation.

Finally, in spite of the howled protests, the members of Homer Gregg's band got their instruments cased. Forming a protective circle around Bruce Crane, and the chanteuse, Gail Lake, they forced a path through the mob of squealing fans to their automobiles in the parking lot. Once they were out of the parking lot all of them except Austin Hammond, the tenor, went speeding gaily out Cahuenga Boulevard. They were headed for the snack which Antoinette Crane had prepared for them.

Bruce, with Gail at his side, led the pack of sleek convertibles. As he swung in a wide arc through the gateway in the stone wall that led to his low, white-washed brick ranchhouse, he gave three short blasts of the horn.

The lights in the entrance to the house went up; and Bruce was first to reach the open doorway where Antoinette Crane stood waiting.

"Happy?" T'nette whispered as Bruce kissed her.

"Closing night was a success," he said indifferently. And then his indifference dissolved into surprise as he noticed T'nette's gown. The dress was flaming red, had no shoulder-straps and very little back.

T'nette laughed softly: "It being the beginning of our first whole week of evenings together for years, I wanted to start out looking like a—gay lady of pleasure."

Somebody started whistling and Gail Lake said:

"It's a stunning gown. You should go on tour with us—as a sort of ornamental added attraction, darling."

Bruce gave Gail a doubtful eye. She had managed to imply that there was something almost indecent about T'nette's dress.

"Harvest time for the claws again, Gail," Homer Gregg said. Gallantly he kissed T'nette's hand in a touchingly sincere gesture.

"You're the only genuine lady I know, Mrs. C. And the dress—His usually hard, beady eyes softened. "Nobody," he concluded, "nobody but a lady could get by with it."

With so much attention focussed upon her, T'nette blushed. In sweet confusion she motioned them into the brilliantly lighted house.

"Your party," she said, wishing at the same time she could feel at home with these people just once, "is waiting in the dining room."

She tried to match their airy mood. "With purple ice cream and pink cake and—everything else."

"What a ghastly combination," Gail said and swept on past T'nette.

The men followed Gail. Of course, T'nette had been joking about the purple ice cream. She and Mrs. Lyons, the housekeeper, had carefully prepared for each member of the band his favorite dish; and the dining room table did look beautiful.

But T'nette made no reply to Gail's remark. Instead, she left the group and went to the nursery to look in on Julie, just to be certain the little girl was sleeping soundly. Then, expecting to find everybody in the dining room, she hurried back. But it was empty.

From the den, across the patio, came the raucous laughter that made up the spirit of the band. The phonograph went into action, blatant in the night air. T'nette's heart sank. When the boys went into one of those sessions with the phonograph, they all got strange unseeing expressions on their faces; and T'nette never knew quite how to behave.

Angry she crossed the patio. As she entered the den she saw a pile of new recordings on the floor.

"Look," she said loudly. "Your party will get cold. You—"

Nobody heard her. Just then Mrs. Lyons shuffled awkwardly in. She bent close to T'nette's ear.

"It's Mr. Austin Hammond," Mrs. Lyons whispered. "He says something terrible is happening. He's on the telephone."

Quick fear hurried T'nette's footsteps as she left the room. Only Gail, who was smoldering in her usual discontent in the barrel chair by the fireplace saw T'nette leave. And only Gail's sharp ears caught the muffled hum of an automobile leaving the grounds a few minutes later. Gail's mental eyebrows lifted. T'nette wasn't the night-humming-bird sort. Or was she?

Homer Gregg had put a new disc on the turntable. The recording was one of Bruce's specialties; an extremely stylistic bit from the Emperor which had all the heppies in the country in a dither.

Homer, standing in critical attention by the fireplace, and feeling that he had held the men down to a solid stretch of business, groaned joyfully:

"It will pay all of our income taxes." His voice took on a sardonic shade. "Even the fools who scream at our, what they call 'butchery' of the classics—even they will buy it so they can sympathize with Beethoven."

Bruce felt embarrassed; and he said:

"Give that phonograph to the Good Will." His eyes caught sight of the clock. "Good Lord!" he said, swinging off the couch and onto his feet. "T'nette's party. Let's eat."

He led the way to the dining room, expecting to find T'nette fussing about the table. But the room was dark.

"Where," he asked, "has our hostess gone?"

"T'nette left the recital an hour ago," Gail said.

Bruce forced a smile. "I'll go hunt for our unmusical friend."

Before Gail had a chance to say that T'nette had gone off in an automobile, the telephone rang out in the pantry adjoining the dining room.

Chapter 2

Bruce went to the telephone. Unexpectedly, T'nette's voice came across the wire.

"I'm at the Hammonds', and you must come in right away," she was saying urgently. "It's Nola's baby."

Bruce knew T'nette never got upset over things that did not matter.

"Give me fifteen minutes."

As he hurried through the dining room he called out: "Keep the home fires burning." Something's gone wrong with Nola. T'nette's there."

Bruce, a strange, heavy excitement growing in him, took the Canyon Road to Beverly Hills in twelve minutes. Seven minutes more found him at the door of the Hammond place.

T'nette met him.

"I'm glad you're here," she said, catching hold of the lapels of his jacket. "I've already telephoned the doctor and an ambulance—and the hospital. But—" She looked up at him with complete trust. "They needed you, darling."

She led him into the bedroom. Nola, who was ten years older than Austin, lay huddled up in a corner of the bed.

"This is it," Bruce said cheerfully to Nola, making certain the old grin was right in place. "What we've been waiting for and what you've been waiting for years."

"But I—I'm so horribly frightened," Nola quavered. "I didn't think one was, usually."

"It's no light chore," he said, "raising a young one these days, what with wicked swing factories like ours leading them down the rug-cutting trail."

"You don't have to try to cheer me up," Nola smiled wanly. One of her skinny hands made a pitiful gesture that included Austin, herself, and the gaudy bedroom. "We just don't seem to know how to do anything right."

The doorbell rang. Bruce answered, and let in the ambulance driver and attendant. "In here." He helped the two men transfer Nola to the stretcher, accompanied them to the ambulance; and before they closed her in, he said:

"Everything's going to be all right. I'll follow you to the hospital with Austin. And make them sound the siren all the way across town. This baby has to have publicity."

The ambulance was soon far up the street. Bruce turned back toward the apartment. T'nette was approaching with Nola's overnight bag.

"I'll take this right down to Nola," she said to Bruce.

"You'll leave it where it is," impulsively he put his arms around her. "I'm sorry about that supper," he apologized. "But the playbacks arrived today—"

"It's all right." She put a soft hand against his mouth. "Give me a kiss and I'll hurry on to the hospital."

"You'll hurry right back to Encino. I'll take the bag to Nola. I can sleep tomorrow," he said, "but Julia will have you up at dawn."

T'nette saw that arguing would do no good. She turned to get into her car; but his arms went around her again.

"I want a raincheck on you in that dress," he said huskily, his lips against her ear. "One of these nights mighty soon—"

She clung to him. "Any time." Their lips met. At last Bruce made himself let her go. "Hurry home, woman," he whispered.

So T'nette drove back to Encino. She would, she supposed, be spending most of the following week at the hospital with Nola. "And there," she commented to the dashboard, "goes my week with Bruce."

A gloom of apprehension settled around her, and a lot of "ifs" circled in her mind. If Nola had been younger, if her general health had been better, if the baby had waited until it was due.

When she reached Encino and turned into the driveway of the house she saw that all the cars were gone. That helped a little.

As she opened the door into the den she involuntarily gasped:

"Oh!"

"Sorry I startled you." Languidly Gail arose from the couch. "I thought I'd stay just in case Mrs. Lyons needed any help with Julie. Besides," Gail laughed without humor, "I forgot I did not have my own car."

"You can sleep in the spare room," T'nette said as graciously as she could.

"Did Bruce stay in town?" T'nette nodded.

"He's a great hand at helping everybody, isn't he?" Viciously Gail threw the cigarette she had been smoking into the cold fireplace. "If you'll lend me a pair of pajamas, I'll take you up on that offer of your spare bed."

T'nette gave her pajamas and a housecoat; and later, alone in her own room, crawled into bed. Remembering the ruined supper party she wanted to weep with exasperation. All of them, including Bruce, thought she was so calm and so contained, when all the while she was a scared little rabbit trying to fit in with Bruce and his loony associates. How shocked they would be if just once she let go, if just once she yelled at all of them and let them know that she, too, was human; that she had emotions occasionally.

But she could not do that. It was that deceptive outer calm of hers that Bruce had wanted. He had said so that night on Catalina Island. They had been lying on the beach below the pavilion where Bruce was pianist in the orchestra that had been playing there that summer.

"You've got to marry me. You—you do something for me; you steady me, you—"

"It's a summer night," she had told him. "It's moonlight and we're on Catalina. You've three years yet of medical school. Three years," she had repeated, her eyes on the twinkling lights of Avalon Bay. "It isn't such a long time."

"Every summer I'll play with some band—a band always can use a good pianist," he had argued. "Through the winters I'll carve my cadaver, I'll learn about bacteria and germs—and memorize all Cushing and Christopher have to say about surgery." A thin veneer of laughter had cloaked his suddenly steel tone. "I'm going to be the best surgeon on the West Coast, you know."

He had caught her to him then in a fierce grip.

"Without you, by my side—to come home to at night, and, maybe, to believe in me—without you I'd never get anywhere. You've got

INDIAN CIVIL STRIFE CAUSES SERIOUS CRISIS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The bloody Moslem-Hindu disorders which have been occurring in various parts of the Indian sub-continent, and especially the savage butchery in the great Punjab district of Pakistan, bring us face to face with the dreadful possibility of large scale civil war among the 490,000,000 of the peninsula.

It should be emphasized that we are speaking of a "possibility." While further bloodshed and destruction must be expected, a general conflagration may well be averted. However, the contingency is there, and should it eventuate it would be the most terrible of all conflicts—religious and racial strife which knows no bounds. The neighboring Chinese political civil war would be milk and honey in comparison.

Unhappily the groundwork for grievous trouble was laid when the two dominions of Pakistan (Moslem) and India (Hindu) recently to marry me, T'nette. Now."

That had been five years ago.

And just two weeks after their marriage somebody had brought Homer Gregg out from the Beverly Wilshire hotel. Surgery, T'nette felt, had lost a promising candidate.

And on nights like this one, when she was alone and unable to sleep, that hour on the beach came back vividly. She should have refused Bruce; she should have stalled until the fall semester had commenced and he had become lost in his work.

T'nette gave her pajamas and a housecoat; and later, alone in her own room, crawled into bed. Remembering the ruined supper party she wanted to weep with exasperation. All of them, including Bruce, thought she was so calm and so contained, when all the while she was a scared little rabbit trying to fit in with Bruce and his loony associates. How shocked they would be if just once she let go, if just once she yelled at all of them and let them know that she, too, was human; that she had emotions occasionally.

But she could not do that. It was that deceptive outer calm of hers that Bruce had wanted. He had said so that night on Catalina Island. They had been lying on the beach below the pavilion where Bruce was pianist in the orchestra that had been playing there that summer.

were formed as wholly separate states, instead of being united in a federal government. The Moslems, outnumbered three to one by the Hindus, refused to place their futures in the hands of this great and distrusted majority.

No Magic Balm

So two suspicious and in numerous respects hostile nations were carved out of the peninsula like a jig-saw puzzle. And when this had been achieved many of the 100,000,000 Moslems were within India's boundaries and large numbers of the 300,000,000 Hindus were inside Pakistan.

What more natural than that violent wrath should descend on the unprotected heads of these unwanted minorities?

The Indians are a highly inflammable people and many are primitive in their passions. There have been some nasty communal outbursts in numerous places, but by far the worst trouble has developed in the Punjab where there are large Hindu and Sikh minorities (Sikhism embraces some of the teachings of Hinduism).

There is no magic balm for the Indian ills. Many close observers believe that the greatest move towards unity would be for the two dominions to join in a federal government which could speak for all sections of the population, and would have common machinery with which to handle emergencies. Short of this it would seem that it may be necessary to uproot the vast minorities from their present homes and re-establish them among their own kind—a Herculean task and one which wouldn't bring complete peace at the best. Only a unified government can succeed.

KILLED BY TRAIN

Monaca, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP)—A train struck the automobile of Michael Knott, 26, killing him Monday. An ex-paratrooper, Knott was planning to return to a veterans' hospital for treatment of an old leg wound.

He was given a tryout by the Pittsburgh Pirates last spring but failed due to his injury. He played in the infield.

Big engines... long trains mean lower cost to you!

But union leaders want "half-trains"—double crews!

Big locomotives are built to do a big job in the big country which is America—a big job in peacetime as in wartime. They are built to pull long trains.

Long freight trains can handle more goods at less cost—to you—than short trains.

Long trains mean fewer trains—fewer chances for accidents—fewer interruptions to traffic.

But a few railroad union leaders oppose long trains—among their current 44 demands for changes in rules is one limiting the length of freight trains to 57 average cars. Why do they demand this?

For "safety," they say. But is it? Government figures show definitely that long trains mean greater safety to railroad employees and public alike.

Then, if safety is not the real reason—what is the reason behind this demand?

It is to make more jobs which are not needed—to get more pay! This "made work" would be sheer waste. Think of big, modern locomotives using only half their power.

For this waste, you—the public—would have to pay. Higher costs mean a lower standard of living for everybody. Nobody wants that!

Here's the record . . .

In the quarter century...1921-1946...

Average length of freight trains has gone up... 39%

Average speed of freight trains has gone up... 39%

The rate of injuries to railroad employees has gone down... 60%

Average wages paid railroad workers have gone up... 84%

Price of railroad materials and supplies has gone up... 58%

Railroad taxes have gone up... 76%

But the average charge by railroads for hauling a ton of freight one mile has gone down... 23%

PARENTS CAN HELP KIDDIES WITH SCHOOL

By MAX HALL

Washington, (AP)—Millions of little people are going to school this month.

Does that mean the parents have no further responsibility?

It does not. Let's see what the parents can do to help.

First, some figures:

The U. S. Office of Education believes about 32,070,000 youngsters will attend schools and colleges—a new record. About 22,620,000 will be in elementary schools. About 2,450,000 of these are six-year-olds, entering the first grade.

They will be starting out on one of the greatest adventures of their lives.

Depends On Parents

Regardless of what adults may think, most of the children are eager for the adventure. Most of them will find it a happy experience. Others will suffer a psychological shock.

Much depends on how well their parents have prepared them.

Frances Mayfarth, editor of "Childhood Education," a non-profit professional journal for teachers, says the parents can prepare the children by:

1. Sending them to nursery schools or kindergartens (but these institutions aren't available to many children).

2. Seeing that they play with other children of the same age.

3. Teaching them to feed and dress themselves, go to the toilet by themselves, and speak so as to be understood.

4. Seeing that they have "experiences" they can talk about—such as trips, toys, stories, books, and especially little chores that will show them how to work.

5. Encouraging the children to have a "positive attitude" toward school, instead of considering it only a place for discipline. (Remarks like, "Just wait till you get in school; the teacher will certainly make you toe the mark," are unwise.)

Those are things the parents can do before the child enters school.

Other Ways To Help

After enrollment, the parents can keep on with most of those things. And, according to Mrs. Mayfarth, they can also:

1. Take a genuine interest in the school work, with teachers and administrators, understand what the school is trying to accomplish (and not consider it only a place where the harassed mother can be rid of the children for a few hours each day).

2. Support the whole "school structure" by working and voting for more financial support.

3. Send the child off in the morn-

Two Workmen And Rescuer Suffocate

Follansbee, W. Va., Sept. 9 (AP)—

Two workmen and a companion who went to the aid of the pair were suffocated by gas fumes yesterday while working in a water well at the Follansbee Steel corporation plant property.

Dead on arrival at a Steubenville hospital were Charles Fowler, 60, machine shop foreman; John Schmitz, 30, and Robert Ryan, 34, both pipe fitters.

Personnel Manager O. G. Bryte said Fowler and Schmitz had gone down the 45-foot well to check its condition and were overcome by what was believed to be "black damp" gas. Ryan, noting their condition, entered the shaft to aid them and collapsed.

Seven other workers brought the three men to the surface after donning gas masks. They were taken to a hospital for examination for possible exposure to the fumes.

ings in a happy frame of mind. For example, much wrangling over what clothes to wear, and so on, can be avoided by "pre-night planning," that is, laying out the clothes at night and having it understood just what is to be worn.

4. Build up an impregnable sense of "security" in the child by love and kindness, so that the child will not fear to come home with problems, and will know positively that whatever happens, the parents will continue to love and stand behind him.

Modern educators say this "security" is a vital contribution of the home toward the education of the child.

A good school can develop "adequacy" by promoting the child's particular talents and skills, but the school has no substitute for inner security.

WHISK FLIER TO ENGLAND BY AIR FOR SAFETY

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP)—A young American flier credited with having saved London from being "bombed" by 10,000 Jewish propaganda pamphlets was hidden away today somewhere in England where he was flown by the RAF, presumably for his own protection.

He is Reginald Gilbert, 24-year-old Birmingham, Ala., native who was said by French police to have joined the Jewish "Fighters for the Freedom of Israel"—the so-called Stern Gang—to foil plans to wage a war of nerves against Britain including a pamphlet bombing of the British capital.

Police said they feared for the flier's life if the Stern Gang ever caught up with him. Friends of the pilot said he had been placed under the protection of Scotland Yard until he could be returned to America.

Face Prison Terms

Nine persons are in the custody of French police as a result of Gilbert's alleged espionage, including Rabbi Baruch Korff, 33, alleged leader of the "bomb" plot, who was on a self-described hunger strike until "I have been freed" by French police. Korff was charged under a 1939 decree forbidding the possession of "pamphlets of foreign origin of a nature to undermine the defense of the country."

Conviction on this charge carries a sentence of one to five years.

Gilbert, told friends he strung along with the plotters for 10 days with full knowledge of Scotland Yard and French police. The latter closed in on the group Saturday just before the takeoff for the "raid."

The flier also told friends the plot included the dropping of explosive bombs made with fire extinguishers, but French officials said they had found no sign of such explosives.

Doylestown, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP)—Col.

A veteran of World War I Medical Corps, he was president of the Allegheny County Medical Society in 1914 and was past commander of the Legion of Honor of the Syria Temple Shrine, Pittsburgh.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at Wycombe, Bucks county. Burial will be in Arlington National Cemetery, Washington, D. C.

BRITISH STRIKE IS 'THROWBACK' TO BAD TIMES

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

They say there always are two sides to a dispute—a truth worth remembering in trying to read the stubborn minds of the British Yorkshire coal miners who continue to strike despite the fact that heavy production of coal is the logical blood transfusion needed to save England from utter economic collapse.

A week ago British Foreign Secretary Bevin, who also is one of the country's foremost labor leaders, declared that if the nation's workers were to avoid dictatorship they must combat the economic crisis by accepting drastic measures. He lauded the powerful trades' union Congress for agreeing in principle to government direction of labor in peace-time if situations warranted it.

Still the present week began with the Grimthorpe colliery—origin of the strike—again voting to continue despite appeals by their socialist government and union leaders to resume work. Many other miners are striking in sympathy and industries heavy-type around 670 pounds, $26 for best price of day. Cow trade strong opening rounds with the demand greatly for this class, but incoming receipts largely cows and by the close of the market trading, less active and prices steady with the close of last week. Good beef, $17.50—22, with bulk of the supply, $19.50—21. Medium and good weighty sausage, $17.50—19, with odd-head lots up to $19.50 and above. Light and mediumweight, $15—17, with extreme light southern bulls, $15. Stocker and feeder trade active and fully steady with the close of last week. Demand broadest for weighty, quick turn feeder steers. Medium and good stocker and feeder steers, 900 pounds, $18—23; common lightweight stockers, $13.50—17.

CALVES—Vealers in broad demand, active and $2 higher than the close of last week. Mixed lots of good and choice, 150-220 pounds, $21—25, with strictly choice, $26. Common and medium, $13—20, and culls around $11, with underweights, less than 80 pounds, to $5. Weighty slaughter calves shared the vealer advance. Good 275-350-pound slaughter calves, $13—20.

HOGS—Hog trade active and 7c higher than the close of last week on all classes. Practical top to the highest since the removal of price controls. Good and choice hams and gilts, 120-140 pounds, $27.50—27.75; 140-160 pounds, $28.75—29; 160-250 pounds, $29.50—30; 250-275 pounds, $28.25—28.75; 275-300 pounds, $27—27.75; 300-350 pounds, $24.50—25.50; 350 pounds and up, $23.50—24. Good and choice sows weighing under 400 pounds, $22.25—23.25, with sows weighing over 400 pounds, $21.25 down.

SHEEP—Fat lambs active and $1 higher than the close of last week. Mixed lots of good and choice spring lambs, bucks included, $24—25. Mixed lots of medium and good, $17—25, and culls and common lambs, $12—14. Slaughter ewes active and steady, good and choice fresh short ewes under 150 pounds, $7—7.50, with common and medium ewes, $3.50—6.50.

throughout the country are suffering. It is Britain's worst labor dispute in three years.

Why such a strike at one of the most fateful moments in England's history when the country is appealing to the United States for financial aid, and the American public is wondering in view of the strike whether John Bull is doing everything possible to help himself? This column doesn't presume to apologize for the miners, who must speak for themselves, but makes an effort to understand them.

Looks Back 25 Years. I'm looking back some twenty-five years when I investigated the appalling conditions which existed in many of the Welsh coal mines, terrible privation, including stark hunger, prevailed in numerous areas, not only in Wales but in northern England. This was due in part to the pitifully low wages paid the men who spent much of their lives in darkness, and in part to the closing of collieries when the price of coal dropped below what seemed profitable to the owners.

It was a bad show. It was so bad, in fact, that the general strike of 1926 throughout Britain—the world's first general strike—was the outgrowth of a protracted walk-out of miners throughout the country for better wages and working conditions. The rest of labor joined them.

More than incidentally, King Edward VIII—he who later abdicated for love—is said to have irked the conservative government not end by promising, on his own responsibility, that conditions in the mine fields would be improved. The government at that moment was working on a plan for improving conditions and felt that Edward had upset their apple-cart.

Miners Are Wrong. That brings us up the Grimthorpe miners. They're striking, as I get it, largely because they still are liv-

Trainmen's Strike Still Deadlocked

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 9 (AP)—Negotiations to end the five-day strike of 1,800 operating employees of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation's inter-plant railroad remain deadlocked today despite reports of "some progress." The contract dispute involving a 50-cents-an-hour package wage boost has idled basic operations of the Nation's biggest steel producer, a U. S. Steel corporation subsidiary, and caused the layoff of 17,000 of its 35,000 employees. The company estimates its production loss at 20,000 tons of finished steel a day.

Some 12,000 to 15,000 workers are threatened with unemployment in fabricating firms dependent on Carnegie-Illinois for steel.

The strike was called Friday by workers on the Union railroad—members of the Pittsburgh locals of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and Locomotive Engineers. Both the national unions and the railway mediation boards have termed the walkout "unauthorized."

The United States has approximately 230,000 churches.

Vets: Your Bonus Dollars Will Buy More Tomorrow

Present skyhigh prices are due to take an earthward dip some day. Keep this fact in mind and hold your Terminal Leave Bonds if you can. However, if you must cash them you may do so at this bank. In that case, you will be wise if you deposit some of these bonus dollars in a reserve bank account. They will look bigger in 1950 than they do now, and they will be mighty nice to have.
